The Emirates story started in 1985 with the launch of services with just two aircraft. Today, Emirates has one of the world's biggest fleets with 70 Airbus A380s and 150 Boeing 777s, offering customers the comforts of the latest and most efficient wide-body aircraft in the skies.

Emirates proudly boasts a growing network of worldwide destinations, industry leading inflight entertainment, regionally inspired cuisine and world-class service.

At the beginning of 2013 SAS commenced in house training for Emirates Aviation, delivering initially a 3 day Maintenance Planning training course considering both regulatory drivers, obligations and best practice to deliver effective Maintenance Planning Training.

This course was repeated again twice during 2014 to provide additional focus the Maintenance Planning Training and was split into two specific 2 Day Training courses offering basic and advanced over a 4 day period.

After the successful completion of several maintenance planning training courses SAS was invited to deliver a dedicated course for the Airworthiness Review Team responsible for managing the Airworthiness Review Certificate of the Emirates Fleet, this course focused on a detailed understanding of the requirements to maintain compliance with CAR M.

Following the ARC training course SAS was invited to run a series of 3 day courses to provide the Quality Auditors with a shared understanding of the best practice to deliver effective auditing within both the CAMO and 145 environment.

With the successful completion of the Quality Assurance training program, SAS was invited to deliver a series of Production Planning training courses for BASE Maintenance Staff.

Commented Steven Bentley MD of SAS “ It is interesting to see how successful organisations, and without doubt Emirates is standing proud in terms of success, typically demonstrate a specific and positive focus in respect of the need for training. It is also immediately evident to see benefits when an organisation embraces not just training which is driven by mandatory regulatory requirements, but also training which is directly connected to the specific development of competence. Without doubt such a proactive attitude provides the organisation with not just a significant return on investment, but has a direct bearing on the positive attitude, culture and behaviour of the team members.”

Within SAS we are very pleased to have been able to support Emirates and look forward to the opportunity to continue to provide training support.
