Safety Management serves as a catalyst for enhancing organizational processes to drive efficiency and ultimately lead to significant cost savings. This perspective sets Safety Management apart from other mandated systems, making it an essential topic for discussion at our upcoming conference.

Unlike rigid regulatory frameworks, Safety Management Systems (SMS) are performance-driven. They rely on internally defined organizational criteria, challenging regulators in terms of auditability. However, the essence lies in recognizing SMS as an intrinsic part of an organization. The focus should extend beyond compliance with regulations and align with the broader needs and goals of the organization.
